Housing Type	Rent Range	Advantages	Disadvantages	Where to Apply
Subsidized Housing	Rent is about 30% of your monthly income. There are income limits.	Affordable. Must follow federal housing guidelines.	Long waiting lists up to 5 years & some waitlists are closed. The rent subsidy stays with the apartment, it does not move with you. Must pass background check to qualify.	Apply directly with local Public Housing Authorities or property management companies.
Section 8 Voucher Program	Rent is between 30% and 40% of your monthly income. There are income limits.	Affordable. Rent subsidy can move with you.	Waitlist is closed. Limits on amount of rent covered. Must pass background check to qualify.	Apply with local Public Housing Authorities.
Affordable Housing Tax Credit Program (Section 42)	Rent is market rate minus a discount. There are income limits.	Many newer properties. Many are accessible. Many apartment complexes are senior communities. Rent discount.	Waiting lists can be 6 months to 2 years. Rent discount is not always low enough to be affordable. Must pass a background check to qualify.	Apply directly with property management companies.
Privately Owned/Market Rate Housing	Variable depends on size, location, age, condition, what the going market rate is for rent, etc.	Flexibility, Choice, Availability.	No rent discount & some landlords require that your income is 3 times the rent. Many landlords require a background check.	Apply with landlord or property management company.
